

What's Your View?

New social media or web 2.0 tools such as Facebook, Twitter and YouTube provide the North Carolina Department of Transportation (NCDOT) with an opportunity to communicate with and engage the public on a variety of fronts, allowing us to reach and involve groups and individuals that would not traditionally participate in the planning process.

Below is a listing of the Driving 95 social media sites, an explanation of what they are and information on how you can join our online community. Hope to see you online!

Driving 95 Facebook Page

What is it? Facebook is a free social networking website where users can create a personal profile, add friends and follow specific Pages and Groups of interest. The Driving 95 Facebook Page allows users to participate in online discussions, solicits feedback to project specific questions, includes upcoming event information, links to photographs, videos and other resources.

How can I use it?

- ♦ Visit <http://www.facebook.com/pages/Driving-95/261880725840> to view the Driving 95 Page
- ♦ You will have to sign up for a Facebook account at <http://www.facebook.com/> in order to post comments and participate in the discussions on the Driving 95 Facebook Page
- ♦ To become a Fan of the Driving 95 Page and receive updates go to <http://www.facebook.com/pages/Driving-95/261880725840> and click on

Driving 95 on Twitter (@Driving95)

What is it? Twitter is a free social networking and micro-blogging service that enables its users to send and read messages known as tweets. Tweets are text-based posts of up to 140 characters. The Driving 95 Twitter account is @Driving95. Updates on the project, new blog entries, questions and useful facts will be posted through @Driving95.

How can I use it?

- ♦ Visit <http://www.twitter.com/Driving95> to view @Driving95's tweets.
- ♦ You will have to sign up for a Twitter account at <http://www.twitter.com> to participate in the discussion, post tweets and follow posts by @Driving95.
- ♦ To follow and receive all updates visit <http://www.twitter.com/Driving95> and click

Driving 95 on You Tube

What is it? You Tube is a free video sharing service that enables its users to post, share and discuss videos. The Driving 95 You Tube Channel will include videos from the project area, the public meeting and more.

How can I use it?

- ♦ Visit <http://www.Youtube.com/driving95> to view videos.
- ♦ You will have to sign up for an account at <http://www.youtube.com> to subscribe to the Driving 95 You Tube Channel and post comments.
- ♦ To subscribe visit <http://www.Youtube.com/driving95> and click on 